Energy
New Frontiers
in Quantum Healing

Sue Whittaker

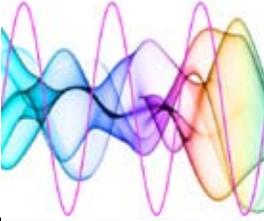

Tesla envisioned the coming development of vibrational medicine because he understood good health is subject to appropriate vibrational energy. He also recognized we need to be safe from harmful forms of radiation. Since we can be harmed by bad energy and helped by good, the presenter is using her skills in applied dowsing to create these needed beneficial effects for people and animals. Sue Whittaker, the founder of Wellsong Energetics, will describe the progress she has had creating positive energies, blocking the negative, and replicating the vibrational image of nutritional products using exotic recipes of sand, crystals and charged copper. She will also describe her progress managing the Herxheimer reactions, which is occurring in some cases due to the strong powers involved.

She will describe her success adapting the daily re-energizing of the vibrational images to support from continuous flow generators with harmonic, geometric properties, like the Golden Fire Generator described at this conference in previous years, by Brian Besco at TwistedSage.com and the DNA Spirals from Alicja Aratyn at IntuitiveDowsing.com. Sue's research has evolved to a stage where there are now over 100 products in three groups: supplements, personal enhancement, and Vibronics. While the current design requires daily clearings and re-energizing to work as intended, there are plans in development to make this easier to manage and available to trained practitioners.

Frequency or Waveform?

Michael Petrovich

Over the last 100 years, specific frequencies have been identified that produce a biological response. Royal Raymond Rife identified frequencies that he called the "mortal oscillatory rate" which represented the resonate frequencies of pathogens that could be destroyed using those frequencies. In later years, frequencies were discovered that could also assist various biological systems. The early pioneers of Radionics determined frequencies that could assist the body to achieve higher states of health. Dr. Paul Nogier determined seven frequencies to assist organs and tissues back to a natural state of health. Dinshah Ghadiali developed light frequencies to assist the body. Peter Guy Manners worked with healing sound frequencies, building on the work of Hans Jenny. Through his work, we begin to see the application of not a single frequency but a combination. Bill Nelson, the inventor of the QXCI/SCIO stored homeopathic equivalencies in a 22x22x22 array that could be delivered to the body.

Light passing through various substances produce incredible results by sending not just frequencies but complex waveforms. Frequency is a force, but a waveform contains information, and healing can be a response to that information. Can we advance health technology through the application of information delivery beyond what we can do with simple frequencies?

Water &
Deuterium
Depleted Water

Robert Slovak

This presentation by Robert Slovak and Victor Sagalovsky starts by reminding attendees of the most important things to know about the subject of water for their health and how to be discerning about water products - what ones to acquire and what to avoid. The focus will then turn to Deuterium Depleted Water (DDW)... a subject that has been essentially dormant in the world of practitioner and consumer health since the early 1960s.

DDW first got the attention of the scientific world when Russian researchers reported that DDW consumption greatly extended the lifespans and energy levels of laboratory animals more than any other known approach. Others reported that the simple ingestion of DDW water prevented cancer and put existing cancer in remission. The problem then was that no one had a solid scientific explanation for these phenomena.

Despite these startling reports and studies, which now number in the thousands, little has been publicized about the remarkable health benefits of drinking DDW daily until recently. Robert and Victor will enlighten us about these new revelations and teach the audience how to properly incorporate DDW into their daily health habits. They will inform you how get your water supplies and body fluids tested for Deuterium, what benefits to expect from the first year of DDW use and where to go to experience the therapeutic application of DDW for serious health issues.
