

Mind-Interface Technology Method to Detect the Mind's Residual Effect

Robert Plotke

For our purpose there must be a distinction between the brain and mind in this way; to control a physical device with the brain, the brain waves must be accessed by implants or electrodes placed on the skull (EEG). The brain-wave signals are processed, and changes in brain-wave characteristics are used to control electro-mechanical devices. When there is an effect on a mind-interface technology device without the use of implants or electrodes, we do not use the term brain, instead we use the term mind.

The mind-interface technology is safe. There is no energy sent to the body. There are no sensor connections to the body and no brain/surgical implants. Our technology is strictly at the effect of mental intention.

How does it work? Our technology creates a subatomic source. The effect of mental intention is the creation of greater order in the subatomic source. A characteristic behavior of the subatomic source is measured. The greater order detected while processing the subatomic source measurement values is represented as an orderliness metric. The metric is then used as the device control output.

Limited tests indicate a residual effect of mental intention. With a more extensive participant sample and rigorous methodology the residual effect may conclusively be proven, making a case for memory stemming from the mind and not the brain.

How The Tin Man Found His Brain...

Danute Debney Shaw

Why the "Tin Man" metaphor? The answers are already within us and require discovery and implementation. In these times there is an incredible need for the most powerful of decision-making. It's even more important than ever for everyone today and certainly entrepreneurs. This need was always there, but now, with the speed of technology and vast amounts of information, we must clearly discern fact from fiction; founded information from opinion, inspiration from unfounded fantasy. Not only do we need to comprehend but to discern and to work from a place of wisdom in our thoughts, plans and actions. To work with vision and perception as well as creativity and imagination. This is what life is about not to mention all good science and business.

Nikola Tesla invented and/or contributed to the invention of a countless list of technological advances. Everything from electrical current, wireless transmission to robotics and more. This was accomplished not just by reason and logic alone, but by the incorporation of vision, imagination, insight and creativity. All men and women who achieve a personal sense of success, fulfillment and even greatness, draw upon these same resources. We may not all be Teslas, but yes we can achieve our own form of person greatness by employing the same type of inner tools and developing our skills whether for our business, entrepreneurship or in the happiness and satisfaction of our daily, personal lives.

COGNYVA Brain Therapy Machine!

INCREASES THE ENTIRE VITALITY OF THE HUMAN BRAIN

Ralph Suddath

Euphorion's brain boosting treatments are non-invasive neuro procedures with a wide range of beneficial effects on the brain. Better sleep, improved memory and energy, and a more positive, energetic state of mind are few noted changes. Euphorion uses light antenna technology to stimulate, regenerate, and heal brain cells in dormant sections of the brain. In the near Future that we may well become superhuman by maximizing our human brain potential.

Euphorion brain treatments activate regions of the brain that promote alertness, and improves cognitive performance. It can also help to stimulate the process of nerve conduction, promote the differentiation of neural stem cells, and improve the oxygen content of red blood cells and blood circulation. This can help reduce the cognitive effects of aging. Enhancing cognitive performance changes the lives of millions suffering from memory loss, neurological or psychological disorders. . It also penetrates the blood-brain barrier providing your mind with an abundance of hydration and fresh energy. Fluids flow throughout your whole body more freely which provides your brain with more energy and all the fluids it needs which enhances your mental clarity.

EUPHORION is known to be effective in alleviating symptoms of Traumatic Brain Injuries and as a treatment for Dementia patients!